A newsletter for Old Scholars' of Woodlands, St Peter's Glenelg and St Peter's Woodlands

NEW OLD SCHOLARS' LOUNGE •

St Peter's Woodlands have generously refurbished the former Lower Boardroom, or some may remember it as the Law Smith common room, and renamed it the Old Scholars' Lounge.

The Old Scholars' Lounge is available to all old scholars for meetings, gatherings or just a place to come together for coffee and chat.

In the near future further upgrades and changes will continue to take place around the school by displaying the wonderful history of the three schools, St Peter's Glenelg, Woodlands CEGGS and St Peter's Woodlands to our community. Memorabilia, photos and artefacts will be placed around the school with attached stories so that our current students as well as former students can relive the days of old as they tour the school.

Items previously held in the museum will now be on show around the school including a tribute to the life and legacy of Elaine Balfour-Ogilvy, displaying the honour boards, showcasing the importance of Japanese language in the school, historical items from boarding house days, old uniforms and so much more.

OLD SCHOLAR NEWS

WOODLANDS ART TEACHER

Known as Mrs Eyre to Woodlands girls, Jaki always speaks with a lot of pleasure about her 26 years as an art teacher at Woodlands (1964-1990). Her teaching introduced new media and approaches, including pottery, copper jewellery, spinning and printmaking which contributed to growing art and craft space from one art room to three. Jaki's creativity and resourcefulness also helped in school productions including play-readings of The Crucible and Our Town, which were performed as fundraisers for Durham House's charity, Wanslea. The audiences were tempted with the offer of delectable suppers! Led by Val Lillington's energy, school musical productions included The Little Sweep, My Fair Lady, The Sound of Music and The King and I. For these, Jaki involved her family; their roles included building and painting sets and her son, Marcus, was an actor. Jaki also supervised the chess club, driving the team to matches in her VW camper. Following retirement, silk painting, pottery and quilting remained Jaki's passions. She continues to enjoy hearing news from students she taught. Jaki and Terry, who live in the house he designed and in which they raised their children, celebrated their 72nd wedding anniversary in 2021.
